

“Nothing to mountaineering, just a little physical endurance, a good deal of brains, lots of practice, and plenty of warm clothing.”—Annie Smith Peck

Warm wraps

Stay snug longer with scarves and neck warmers that suit your style.

The Thermafur Air Activated Heating Scarf (suggested retail, $17.99), from TechNiche, features three pockets sized to hold Heat Pax Body Warmers, which deliver 20 hours of warmth once opened and exposed to air. Made of 100 percent poly-fleece, the scarf comes in royal blue, black or khaki. Three Heat Pax are included. Call (877) 872-4415 or visit www.equestriancollections.com.

The tube-shaped Newmarket Fleece Neck Warmer (suggested retail, $9.95), from Horseware Ireland, fits around your neck, and an adjustable toggle keeps it snugly in place all day. Made of machine-washable polar fleece, the neck warmer is available in charcoal, chocolate or sunflower stripes. Call (888) 752-5171 or visit www.smartpak.com.

Thin enough to wear under a helmet, the Opus Balaclava (suggested retail, $17.95), from Mountain Horse, features flatlock seams for comfort and a mesh mouth insert to limit moisture buildup. Made of 100 percent polyester, the balaclava comes in one size, in black. To locate a dealer, go to www.englishridingsupply.com.

Horse silhouettes adorn the tan-and-black Reversible Horse Scarf (suggested retail, $29.95). Made of a wool-acrylic blend, the scarf measures eight by 60 inches and is trimmed in blanket stitching. Dry clean only. Call (800) 865-2478 or visit www.backinthesaddle.com. 🐾

